

EXPLORE KASHMIR

my last trip was a kashmir. i m so enjoyed with my family . it was a nice holiday in kashmir .we are visiting a new place and meet a new people. and get a so many new experience.i create a so many new memories in my life. i enjoyed my holiday.

i love to travel and visit new places get some knowledge. in a kashmir personally i love to visit in patnitop in jan-fab month. that place are cover in a snow. it looks like heven . and whenever you go any mountain side must you eat a hot maggie and cool mountain.

it's a nice and spicy experience.

🚦 1st place

view of a patnitop:-

I love to play in a snow and this place is a cover in a snow. I beadly enjoy in patnitop. And I get a some new adventure and play in a snow. Best holidays ever.

🚦 2nd place

Shivkhori (Mahadev mandir)

It's a full on adventurous place. Shiv Khori or the cave of Lord Shiva is a holy shrine lying on a hillock, in Ransoo village, about 140 km from Jammu. A naturally formed four-foot-tall lingam is worshipped in the cave and is believed to be swayambhu or self-manifested. According to legend, the cave is dedicated to the unborn and invisible form of Lord Shiva. The route to the cave is a little challenging and requires a trekking of 3 km, through a route flanked by scenic mountains and lush landscape. Other natural rock formations in the cave are dedicated to Goddess Parvati, Lord Ganesha, Lord Kartikeya, Bull God Nandi and Sheshnag. As per a legend, around 33 crore deities are present in this cave. Another legend says that thousands of years ago, a demon called Bhashmasur spent a lot of time meditating deeply on Lord Shiva. In time, Bhashmasur is believed to have extracted a blessing from the lord that he be given the power to end the life of any one by keeping his hand on the person's head. It is said that Lord Shiva made this cave from his trishul (trident) in order to avoid demon Bhashmasur when he was chasing after him. He resided here for some time with Goddess Parvati and Nandi.

3rd place:-

Jwaladevi (himachal)

Jawala Ji Temple is one of the highly venerated Shakti Temples in India. It is situated in the lap of Shivalik range of Kangra valley called “Kalidhar”. This is believed to be the first ever temple built by the Pandavas. Jwala Ji is a Devi Temple Dedicated to the “GODDESS OF LIGHT”, located in Jawala Mukhi, district Kangra of Himachal Pradesh. Sati’s tongue is believed to have fallen at the very place where Jwala devi Temple is now situated. The Tongue of sati is represented by Holy Flames or Jwala that is perpetually burning. Jwala devi temple as a center of faith is unparalleled and unique. There is no deity or idol that is worshiped. It has the series of natural flames or Jyotis since times immemorial believed to be the symbol of Goddess. Jawala Ji is a great heritage centre for not only the people of Jawala Mukhi, Kangra or Himachal Pradesh but of the whole world.

I m full enjoy with my family. And I love to learn new thing . this is all about my last trip.
